Query ID: test3284

Query Text: where does the microchip go in a dog

Retrieved Documents:

| neck between the shoulder blades on the dorsal midline. According to one reference, continent doc112423 Microchip implant (animal). In Israel, microchips in dogs are mandatory.[citation needed] Dognapping. Dogs can be fitted with microchip implants that make them identifiable if they are found.[32] This enables a dog to be identified unless the chip has been removed or has degraded, been ass Microchip implant (animal). Microchips can be implanted by a veterinarian or at a shelter. After checking that the animal does not already have a chip, the vet or technician injects the chip with a sy Microchip implant (animal). Authorities and shelters examine strays for chips, providing the recovery service with the ID number, description and location so they may notify the owner or contact. If t Microchip implant (animal). Animal shelters, animal control officers and veterinarians routinely look for microchips to return lost pets quickly to their owners, avoiding expenses for housing, food, m Microchip implant (animal). Many veterinarians scan an animal's chip on every visit to verify correct operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] doc112402 Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin of an animal. The chip, about the size of a large grain of rice, uses passive RFID (Radio Fre | 1 | doc112414 | Microchip implant (animal). In dogs and cats, chips are usually inserted below the skin at the back of the |
|--|---|------------|--|
| Dognapping. Dogs can be fitted with microchip implants that make them identifiable if they are found.[32] This enables a dog to be identified unless the chip has been removed or has degraded, been ass Microchip implant (animal). Microchips can be implanted by a veterinarian or at a shelter. After checking that the animal does not already have a chip, the vet or technician injects the chip with a sy Microchip implant (animal). Authorities and shelters examine strays for chips, providing the recovery service with the ID number, description and location so they may notify the owner or contact. If t Microchip implant (animal). Animal shelters, animal control officers and veterinarians routinely look for microchips to return lost pets quickly to their owners, avoiding expenses for housing, food, m Microchip implant (animal). Many veterinarians scan an animal's chip on every visit to verify correct operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | | | neck between the shoulder blades on the dorsal midline. According to one reference, continent |
| This enables a dog to be identified unless the chip has been removed or has degraded, been ass Microchip implant (animal). Microchips can be implanted by a veterinarian or at a shelter. After checking that the animal does not already have a chip, the vet or technician injects the chip with a sy Microchip implant (animal). Authorities and shelters examine strays for chips, providing the recovery service with the ID number, description and location so they may notify the owner or contact. If t Microchip implant (animal). Animal shelters, animal control officers and veterinarians routinely look for microchips to return lost pets quickly to their owners, avoiding expenses for housing, food, m Microchip implant (animal). Many veterinarians scan an animal's chip on every visit to verify correct operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va doc112420 Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] doc112402 Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | 0 | doc112423 | Microchip implant (animal). In Israel, microchips in dogs are mandatory.[citation needed] |
| Microchip implant (animal). Microchips can be implanted by a veterinarian or at a shelter. After checking that the animal does not already have a chip, the vet or technician injects the chip with a sy Microchip implant (animal). Authorities and shelters examine strays for chips, providing the recovery service with the ID number, description and location so they may notify the owner or contact. If t Microchip implant (animal). Animal shelters, animal control officers and veterinarians routinely look for microchips to return lost pets quickly to their owners, avoiding expenses for housing, food, m Microchip implant (animal). Many veterinarians scan an animal's chip on every visit to verify correct operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] doc112402 Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | 0 | doc2593983 | Dognapping. Dogs can be fitted with microchip implants that make them identifiable if they are found.[32] |
| that the animal does not already have a chip, the vet or technician injects the chip with a sy Microchip implant (animal). Authorities and shelters examine strays for chips, providing the recovery service with the ID number, description and location so they may notify the owner or contact. If t Microchip implant (animal). Animal shelters, animal control officers and veterinarians routinely look for microchips to return lost pets quickly to their owners, avoiding expenses for housing, food, m Microchip implant (animal). Many veterinarians scan an animal's chip on every visit to verify correct operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | | | This enables a dog to be identified unless the chip has been removed or has degraded, been ass |
| Microchip implant (animal). Authorities and shelters examine strays for chips, providing the recovery service with the ID number, description and location so they may notify the owner or contact. If t Microchip implant (animal). Animal shelters, animal control officers and veterinarians routinely look for microchips to return lost pets quickly to their owners, avoiding expenses for housing, food, m Microchip implant (animal). Many veterinarians scan an animal's chip on every visit to verify correct operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | 0 | doc112405 | Microchip implant (animal). Microchips can be implanted by a veterinarian or at a shelter. After checking |
| service with the ID number, description and location so they may notify the owner or contact. If t O doc112401 Microchip implant (animal). Animal shelters, animal control officers and veterinarians routinely look for microchips to return lost pets quickly to their owners, avoiding expenses for housing, food, m O doc112409 Microchip implant (animal). Many veterinarians scan an animal's chip on every visit to verify correct operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va O doc112420 Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] O doc112402 Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea O doc112399 Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | | | that the animal does not already have a chip, the vet or technician injects the chip with a sy |
| doc112401 Microchip implant (animal). Animal shelters, animal control officers and veterinarians routinely look for microchips to return lost pets quickly to their owners, avoiding expenses for housing, food, m doc112409 Microchip implant (animal). Many veterinarians scan an animal's chip on every visit to verify correct operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va doc112420 Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] doc112402 Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea doc112399 Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | 0 | doc112408 | Microchip implant (animal). Authorities and shelters examine strays for chips, providing the recovery |
| microchips to return lost pets quickly to their owners, avoiding expenses for housing, food, m O doc112409 Microchip implant (animal). Many veterinarians scan an animal's chip on every visit to verify correct operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va O doc112420 Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] O doc112402 Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea O doc112399 Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | | | service with the ID number, description and location so they may notify the owner or contact. If t |
| O doc112409 Microchip implant (animal). Many veterinarians scan an animal's chip on every visit to verify correct operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va O doc112420 Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] O doc112402 Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea O doc112399 Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | 0 | doc112401 | Microchip implant (animal). Animal shelters, animal control officers and veterinarians routinely look for |
| operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va O doc112420 Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] O doc112402 Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea O doc112399 Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | | | microchips to return lost pets quickly to their owners, avoiding expenses for housing, food, m |
| doc112420 Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] doc112402 Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea doc112399 Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | 0 | doc112409 | Microchip implant (animal). Many veterinarians scan an animal's chip on every visit to verify correct |
| compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] O doc112402 Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea O doc112399 Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | | | operation. Some use the chip ID as their database index and print it on receipts, test results, va |
| doc112402 Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea doc112399 Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | 0 | doc112420 | Microchip implant (animal). Some countries, such as Japan, require ISO-compliant microchips or a |
| rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea doc112399 Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | | | compatible reader on imported dogs and cats.[7] |
| 0 doc112399 Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin | 0 | doc112402 | Microchip implant (animal). Microchips are also used by kennels, breeders, brokers, trainers, registries, |
| | | | rescue groups, humane societies, clinics, farms, stables, animal clubs and associations, resea |
| of an animal. The chip, about the size of a large grain of rice, uses passive RFID (Radio Fre | 0 | doc112399 | Microchip implant (animal). A microchip implant is an identifying integrated circuit placed under the skin |
| | | | of an animal. The chip, about the size of a large grain of rice, uses passive RFID (Radio Fre |

Non-retrieved Relevant Documents: